

STATE RECORD BROKEN.

O. E. Virum, of Stevens Point, Breaks the Record in a Half-mile Open, at Wausau.

There was a good bicycle meet, at Wausau, last Friday and Saturday. The races were hotly contested, some of the best riders in the state being present, and a total of thirty-four were entered. As usual, Stevens Point carried away a good slice of the honors, and several of the prizes as well. O. E. Virum winning four of the races, while W. F. Dewey came out second in one contest and third in two more. Virum broke the state record in a half-mile open, going in 1:07½, while the record heretofore has been 1:09. He also won a mile handicap, a quarter-mile dash and a quarter-mile open. The boys returned home on Saturday evening, Virum being richer by three gold watches and a set of diamond cuff buttons. Dewey's winnings were not so numerous or valuable, but consisted of a neat little diamond scarf pin. A. M. Chandler, of Waupaca, rode a paced mile in 2:12½, breaking the state record in that class by nearly ten seconds. Will Sanger, a brother of Walter Sanger, the noted rider, took part, but he was not a match for Virum in the races where they were competitors for the first place.

Fred Dewey is not pleased over his treatment in the one mile, three minute race, as his protest on account of being cut off by another rider was given no attention by the judges. He further says that a pair of Morgan & Wright bicycle tires were promised for second place in the mile pennant race, won by Chandler; although Dewey took second place, the tires were not forthcoming. Outside of these little unpleasanties, however, the riders and visitors were all used in the most courteous and hospitable manner by the managers and citizens generally.

They are Prize Babies.

Fourteen baby carriages were strung along either side of the Grand Opera House entrance, at last Saturday afternoon's matinee. The occasion was the presentation of "Ten Nights in a Bar-room" by the Gordon-Gibney Co., they advertising to give away several dolls to pretty, large and small boy and girl babies. The first was for the prettiest girl baby, and Cora Johnson, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chris. Johnson, 322 Pine street, carried off the honors. Master Johnnie Brazier, 227 East avenue, was declared the prettiest boy baby. The heaviest baby, 2 years or younger, was decided to be Nellie Lamphier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Lamphier, 308 Dixon street, while Florence Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Richardson, 1202 Division street, was pronounced the lightest baby for her age, 2 years or younger.

At the evening entertainment, N. F. Phillips, W. Matthews, Frank Grimes, Edna Thompson and Chas. McClary were presented with rocking chairs.

Rivals Win Again.

The Stevens Point Rivals went to Mosinee, Sunday, and defeated the Bean Eaters by a score of 15 to 13. It was the best game played there this season. In the second inning the score stood 9 to 2 in favor of Mosinee. Norton then got down to pitching, and the "giants" could do nothing with them. A return game will be played here July 28th. Following is the score:

Gone to Wausau.

H. T. Moulton, who has been a resident of Stevens Point for a few months past, being engaged as book-keeper for the Wisconsin River Paper Co., has removed to Wausau, where himself and father, T. T. Moulton, of Neenah, have purchased the Badger Quartz Mills. This mill was built a year or more ago, and its business is the manufacture of crushed white quartz sand for water filters, sand belts, sand paper, etc. The sand is crushed from granite, secured among the hills west of Wausau, and is said to be very fine and desirable for that purpose. The works have been idle this season, but Mr. Moulton expects to start them up in a week or two, and his friends here wish him unlimited success.

At Bulmansk's Grove.

The committee on arrangements of Bulmansk's grove, announce a picnic and ball for next Sunday afternoon, July 21st. The committee, John Nowak, Martin Bernkhan, Fr. Szafarski and John Okray, announce a good time, with the best music in attendance. Tickets to dance 25 cents. Buses will leave the South Side at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, stopping along Main street. Fare each way, 5 cents.

A Bicycle Meet.

The Great District Fair are preparing for a grand bicycle meet on the last day of their fall meeting, Friday, Aug. 30th. That the best and fastest riders in the state may be attracted here at that time, the association has decided to give $225 in prizes for the afternoon's contest. The matter of arranging the prizes and races has been left in the hands of A. R. Week and F. E. Bosworth, directors, and nothing will be left undone to make this attraction the greatest of any ever attempted in Northern Wisconsin.

Tragedy at Ashland.

John B. Howe, a Wisconsin Central claim agent, who is well known in this city, shot and mortally wounded a saloon keeper named Dan. Williams, at Ashland, last week, the latter dying the next day. Howe, with other friends, stepped into a saloon while on their way to their hotel, and were thereafter joined by Williams. The two men were strangers, and during a discussion which followed, Williams threw a glass of beer into Howe's face. This was repeated, when Howe pulled his revolver and shot, a ball entering Williams' abdomen with fatal results. Howe was released on $5,000 bail, last Thursday. Howe lives at Oshkosh, where he has a pleasant and pretty home.

SALARIES ARE RAISED

Among Most of the Normal Teachers.—Preparations Already Commenced for Opening on Aug. 26th.

President Pray of the Normal spent most of last week at Madison, and Regent Raymond was there for a day or two. The presidents of the various schools presented their reports, and the same were duly considered. The Stevens Point Normal was given an appropriation of $500 for fitting up and furnishing a room for biology. This will be located on the third floor, in large and well-lighted quarters. A like amount was also appropriated for the purchase of a new piano for the school.

Seats in the model department are nearly all engaged at present, several applications having been received of late, but in case of vacancies when school opens, those who apply first will be the first to be considered. The prospects are also very encouraging for an increased attendance in the Normal department, during the next year. Preparations for making changes in some of the rooms, so as to accommodate the additional faculty and expected increased attendance, are now under way.

The faculty next year will be fifteen, an increase of two. Following is a list of salaries, per annum, that will be paid, there being an increase in most cases:

Theron B. Pray.....	$3,000
C. H. Sylvester.....	2,200
Garry E. Culver.....	1,600
Jos. V. Collins.....	1,500
A. R. Sanford.....	1,400
Mrs. Mary D. Bradford.....	1,200
Sophia Linton.....	1,000
Bertha S. Pittman.....	1,000
Rebecca Faddis.....	750
Frank Quinn.....	700
Caroline E. Crawford.....	800
M. E. Tanner.....	900

No Cause for Action.

L. Wiesner & Co. brought a suit against Sigmund Green and wife and Hugo Baskowitz, last Friday, charging them with a conspiracy to rob him of several hundred dollars. Baskowitz, who is a young man of about 20 years, is now in Europe. He attended bar for Wiesner, who is his brother-in-law, for a number of years, and it was charged that he systematically robbed the plaintiff and turned the proceeds over to the Greens for safe keeping. Hugo left for the old country a few months ago. The examination was had before Judge Murat, Raymond, Lamoreux & Park appearing for the plaintiff and W. F. Owen for the defendant. A jury trial was had, and a verdict of no cause for action was rendered. The case will be appealed.

Cold Storage Warehouse.

A. G. Green will soon have one of the best cold storage houses in the state. The foundation walls are now laid, and work upon the structure will be commenced this week by Eugene Woodworth, who has the contract for putting it up. This is the only cold storage establishment in the city, outside of those used by the breweries and brewery agencies, and nothing will be left undone to make it a model in all respects. The building will be 32 feet high, 20x24 feet in size, and will be built mostly of timbers. It will be located near Mr. Green's slaughterhouse, on the North Side, and be connected so that after slaughtering, beef, etc., will be run on patent pulleys into the same without being exposed to the air, and may be kept for thirty days in the hottest weather without danger. The warehouse will cost about $1,500.

BAKER IS CITY CLERK.

Jas. E. Rogers Resigns and is Succeeded by Ald. Baker, with Louis Brill as Successor to the Latter.

A special meeting of the common council was held last Friday evening. Jas. E. Rogers, who has been city clerk since the spring of 1894, tendered his resignation to Mayor Barker the evening before, and the meeting was called to fill the vacancy. For ten minutes before the meeting was called to order, Mayor Barker and Ald. Karner, Polckard, Cushman, Maine, Kiediszewski, King, McCready, Ellenwood, Dumbleton and Phelps, occupied a corner of the room in earnest consultation, while Ald. Baker, at a respectable distance, talked about the weather and matters of apparently less interest, with a reporter of THE GAZETTE. After the consultation, which it was noticeable came to a satisfactory termination, the meeting was called to order by the mayor, and upon his calling the roll, the above eleven aldermen answered to their names. The mayor acted as both presiding officer and clerk, something that has never before been necessary to do in the history of Stevens Point. He stated that the special had been duly called, and notices served by the chief of police.

The resignation of Jas. E. Rogers as city clerk was then read, and upon motion of Ald. Cushman, accepted. R. F. Baker tendered his resignation as alderman of the 1st ward, and the same was upon motion of Ald. Phelps accepted. The mayor presented the name of Louis Brill to fill the expired term of Mr. Baker as alderman, and the appointment was approved by a unanimous vote, each alderman answering in the affirmative as his name was called, a vote being taken on motion of Ald. Karner.

The chief of police was sent to notify the newly elected alderman, and after a short interval returned and notified the council that Mr. Brill was at home and was quite sick. The mayor announced the appointment of R. F. Baker as city clerk, and upon motion of Ald. Karner, the appointment was unanimously confirmed. Mr. Baker was then sworn in by the mayor as city clerk. Upon motion the mayor was authorized to accept and approve of the bond of the newly elected clerk, and the committee on finance were instructed to look over the books of the retiring clerk and have their report ready for the next meeting, on Saturday evening, the 20th inst.

Bicycles Will be Taxed.

For the first time in the history of Stevens Point, bicycles will be taxed here this year. The assessed valuation is from $10 to $20, certainly very reasonable, and we believe that even the most accomplished "tax dodger" will be willing to pay four or five percent on either of these amounts. If the assessors have overlooked any owners of wheels, they can have their names enrolled by applying at the city clerk's office.

Andrew Janauskey Dead.

Andrew Janauskey, a former well known resident of Stevens Point, died at his home in Milwaukee on the 4th inst. Mr. Janauskey resided in the town of Sharon for several years, after which he removed to this city, and during his residence here served as a member of the council from the 4th ward, and was also a member of the county board. Two years ago last April he removed with his family to Milwaukee, where he was engaged in business up to the last of June. He had not enjoyed good health for a number of years, but his death came very sudden, after an illness of only a couple of days. He was in the 46th year of his age, and leaves a wife and one daughter, aged 15 years. All who knew him will be pained to learn of his death.

Returned From Colorado.

Prof. C. H. Sylvester returned to the city last Monday morning, after an absence of three weeks. During this time Mr. Sylvester had been managing the Wisconsin branch of the National teachers' excursion to Denver, Col., and attending the convention and looking after the bureau of information in that city. Some twelve thousand persons took advantage of the excursion rates offered, about three-fourths of whom were teachers. Wisconsin sent a delegation of 150, Prof. Sylvester and Miss Matilda Agnew, of this city, being among the number. Most of those who went will spend a month or more in Colorado, and Miss Agnew will not return until the last of August. Illinois sent a very large delegation, possibly the largest at the convention, and it numbered several hundred. The delegation from Wisconsin, while not large, was much greater than ever before attended a national convention of teachers, and Mr. Sylvester feels proportionately well satisfied with his work.

THE MYSTERIOUS WOMAN.

She Attends a Performance at the Opera House, and Narrowly Escapes Arrest.

There was a mild sensation at the Opera House, last Friday evening. During the performance a couple entered and purchased tickets. The woman acted queerly, being closely followed, but the young man who accompanied her was so well known to the ticket seller and ushers that no questions were asked. They were shown to a box on the second floor, and after taking their seats the woman continued to wear her veil. This excited suspicion and curiosity, both among the audience and managers, and the chief of police was asked to make an investigation. By the time he reached the box, however, the woman had not only removed her veil, but her shawl also, and was about to take off her dress as well. This was stopped in good time, but the woman proved to be a man, and no less a personage than the local manager of the water works, W. O. Lamoreux, while Oscar Moe accompanied him, the latter not being disguised. The chief thought he would carry the joke along, as it had worked very nicely so far, and proceeded to read a warrant to the gentleman in female attire, for masquerading in so public a manner, and to his companion as well, but after several promises, which will not be made public, they were allowed to witness the balance of the stage performance, W. O. in the meantime sliding gracefully out of his skirts. The "mysterious woman" has been found at last.

She is a Winner.

At La Crosse, last Wednesday afternoon, Maggie Sherman won the race in the 2:16 class, taking the last three heats in the race. This makes the third successive race she has won this season, and in the last race she lowered her record to 2:13½. There were eleven other horses in the race, and like on previous occasions, every effort was made to beat the Stevens Point trotter. The contest was witnessed by Louis Brill, one of Maggie's owners.

An Excellent Flowage.

An engineer has been at work for the past ten days making surveys of the Clark water power, its flowage, etc., and his reports thus far are much ahead of what the owner, Mr. Clark, expected. He says the dam has a head of 12 4-10 feet, and with a small expense, of between $2,000 and $3,000, in blasting out rock, and boulders below, this can be maintained from one side of the river to the other. This will give power not only to run electric light, street car and water work plants, as contemplated, but several large factories as well, and the day is not far distant when its entire capacity will be utilized. The engineer expects to complete his work this week, at which time his report and surveys will be perfect down to the minutest details.

No Box Cars Now.

A special train will be run over the Central, starting from this city, for the coming celebration at Phillips, on the 27th inst. The day will be devoted to rejoicing over the success Phillips has attained within the past year, having arisen, it may be said, from a smouldering heap of ashes. When nine Stevens Pointers visited that place the next day after the fire, arriving there at daybreak on the morning of the 29th, after spending the night in a box car, with Gov. Upham as a room mate, they felt but little worse than the hundreds of poor individuals that had been cleaned out by the flames. For the coming event, however, they can ride in a parlor coach. Those who then visited the now re-constructed city, were Emmons Burr, E. B. Lamoreux, B. B. Park, C. H. Grant, Gavin Campbell, Martin Moylan, Bradley Wheelock, Louis Zimmer and E. D. Glennon.

Another Year has Passed.

With this issue THE GAZETTE enters on the eighteenth year of its existence. Just seventeen years ago today, July 17th, 1878, the then frail bark was started on the troubled seas of journalism. Many changes have taken place since then. Stevens Point has grown from a town of about 4,000 souls to a flourishing city of over 9,000 inhabitants, and its progress in all lines has kept pace with its growth. Many good friends and worthy citizens of the city and county have passed away, while others have come to add their mite in making up the push and vim that characterize the present generation of a cosmopolitan people. Newspapers have been born, others have died, but THE GAZETTE keeps on in the even tenor of its way, adding to its usefulness and importance as rapidly as its patronage will permit, and hopes to be a welcome visitor to thousands of appreciative readers for many years in the future.

Death of a Bright Young Lady.

Miss Belinda Sophia Miller, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Miller, died at her home, 309 N. Third street, at half past eleven o'clock last Monday morning, of consumption, aged nineteen years the 4th of this month. She had been ailing for the past two years and since last February was confined to her bed. Miss Miller was born in Kalshamn, Sweden, and came to this country and to Stevens Point in 1887, living here ever since. She has been attending our public schools where she endeared herself to both teachers and pupils by her winning ways and lady like deportment. Had her life and health been spared, Miss Belinda would have graduated with the High School class of 96. Besides her grief stricken parents, three brothers and one sister are left to mourn. Funeral services were held at the Presbyterian church at 2 o'clock this afternoon, Rev. E. P. Rankin officiating, with interment in the Episcopal cemetery. The following young men acted as pall bearers, the first four being classmates of the deceased: Archie McPhail, Alwyn Martin, Frank Pierce, Robt. Porter, Fred Cops, George Booth. The six young ladies whose names are mentioned below acted as flower girls at the funeral of their friend: Julia Danielson, Amelia Port, Alma Neuman, Emma Modell, Alice Leahy, Gusta Augustine.

KICKED BY A HORSE.

Tim. Cantwell is Knocked Down and Jumped Upon by a Horse, Breaking His Left Arm.

Tim. Cantwell, the trusty hostler at Ball & Neuman's barn, met with a distressing accident last Friday evening. Newell Grover and Criss Newborg, of Amherst Junction, drove up in the afternoon to have some repairs done on a wagon, and put their team into the barn to have it fed. At about half-past seven o'clock, they were ready to start on the return trip, and Mr. Cantwell said he would water the team before taking them out. Getting a pail of water, he entered one of the stalls, but when part way in the animal turned and kicked, striking one of his hips and knocking him to the floor. The horse, a small sized gray animal, then proceeded to jump on his prostrate form, breaking his left arm about midway between the elbow and shoulder and bruising one of his legs quite badly. Mr. Cantwell escaped further injury by crawling under the manger. As quickly as possible, and with considerable danger to himself, Fred. Ball entered the stall and led out the horse, after which Cantwell was released from his perilous position. Dr. Stuart was called to set the fracture and dress the wounds.

Some thirty years ago Mr. Cantwell had the same arm broken, at the same place, by a threshing machine. The fracture was never properly set, the bones lapping, and Cantwell was advised to go to Chicago and have an operation performed, it being necessary to cut a small portion of each end of the bone. He left for that city Sunday evening, accompanied by Fred. Ball.

Mr. Grover says he has owned the horse for some time, and while it is quite skittish, he had never known the animal to kick or act ugly before. It is about the size of a bronco, but is not branded. The accident is as much regretted by Mr. Grover as by the victim himself.

Ladies of the Maccabees.

Mrs. Barbara Powell, of Port Huron, Mich., Supreme Deputy Commander of the Ladies of the Maccabees, has been in Stevens Point for a few days and last Monday evening organized a department of the order here. After several matters of less importance had been attended to, the following officers were elected:

Past Com.—Mrs. Ira L. Eldredge. Commander.—Mrs. A. S. Huber. Lieut. Com.—Mrs. Frank Parker. Chaplain.—Mrs. Jas. Altenburg. Record Keeper.—Mrs. W. E. West. Finance Keeper.—Mrs. Owen Evans.

Another meeting will be held at Glover's Hall, tomorrow afternoon. As may be inferred from the name, this organization is an auxiliary to the K. O. T. M., but is confined strictly to the ladies. Members may take out insurance of from $500 to $2,000, or may go in as social members and not carry any insurance. After the meeting Monday evening the Knights surprised their lady friends by serving choice refreshments of ice cream and other delicacies.

A Card.

We wish in this manner to express our most heartfelt thanks to the many kind friends who during the long illness and after the death of our mother did so much for the sick and afflicted.

Buena Vista, July 12, 1895.

WM. BRADY,
CHAS. BRADY,
MRS. M. STAPLETON.

NOW FOR THE SCHOOL.

A Majority of the Few Who Voted on the Bond Question, Favor Bonds Being Issued.

There was an election held in Stevens Point yesterday, but comparatively few voters seemed to realize that such was the fact, as less than one-fourth of them took sufficient interest to go near the polls, or either forgot that the question of issuing bonds for the erection of a new school house was before the people for their consideration. But 378 votes were cast in the city, 233 of which were in favor of issuing bonds, and 145 voted against, leaving a majority of 88. It is thought that every voter who opposed the question went to the polls, while a large majority of those who favored it didn't take sufficient interest to go to the polling places and cast a ballot, or overlooked the question entirely. The latter was the case among scores that we know, including many business men and extensive property owners. But the question was carried by a nice majority, and the Board of Education will proceed at once to let the contract for the new 1st ward building, expecting to have it ready for occupancy in the early winter. Following is the vote by wards:

	For	Agst.
First Ward.....	43	5
Second Ward.....	51	17
Third Ward.....	49	21
Fourth Ward.....	31	49
Fifth Ward.....	37	31
Sixth Ward.....	22	22
	233	145

A Brick Addition.

C. Krembs & Bro. will commence next week to build an addition upon their new brick block, after first moving away the wooden structure that is now located thereon. The new addition will be 22x50 feet, one story high, and will be of solid brick. It will be used as a warehouse for plows, fence wire, etc. The firm expect to get into their new quarters during the early part of August, being delayed by their shelving and casing, which are made at Burlington, Iowa.

Original Court Matter.

Edward Wolf, who was arrested for stealing a keg of beer from the premises of John Lutz, at McDill, plead guilty before Justice Carpenter, on Tuesday, and was fined $1.00 and costs, the whole amounting to $13.25.

Geo. Scott, the young man who assaulted Mr. Lutz on the afternoon of the 5th inst., resulting in the loss of the latter's eye, had his examination before the same tribunal, on Tuesday, and was bound over for trial before the circuit court, bonds being placed at $200. Court will not convene until next November, and those interested in the prisoner are endeavoring to secure the required bail. If found guilty in circuit court, he cannot be sentenced to over three years in Waupun.

John Drapes, who has been in jail for several days, charged with disorderly conduct on the 4th inst., is liable to be called upon to answer another charge, unless the matter is settled up, and it is thought it will be. The young woman in the case says that his treatment of her, and the language used, was not of the most gentlemanly.

Wm. McCall will undoubtedly soon commence to serve time at Waupun, and his service will be from six months to two years, in the discretion of Judge Webb, before whom he will appear for sentence on Tuesday next. McCall had been here for about one year, which time he had been employed about the Lutz livery stable, on the South Side. Last Thursday he stepped into D. A. Agnew's jewelry store, and during a momentary absence of the proprietor in the rear part, McCall grappled a couple of watches, of the intrinsic value of $38.00. These he sold to Fred. Hoffman for $2.50, and the latter in turn sold one of them to T. J. Donlevy for $2.00. Agnew discovered the theft soon after it occurred, and as soon as Donlevy heard of it, he brought the watch to the owner. McCall was then arrested, and his examination took place before Judge Murat yesterday.

Evidently Mr. Benjamin Harrison is becoming frightened at the hammering McKinley is getting at the hands of the friends of the other candidates, as a result of his efforts to keep himself prominently before his party as a Presidential candidate. Mr. Harrison is tender, and he never liked hammering, so he has adopted another course. It has been said before, but fearing that it might have been forgotten, he arranged to have Mr. John W. Foster, who was once charged with being Mr. Harrison's spy upon Secretary Blaine, and who became Secretary of State himself when Mr. Blaine retired from the Harrison administration, to say again that he was not a candidate; was doing nothing to get the nomination, but would not, of course, decline should the party insist upon nominating him. These statements are absurd, and they feel such.

JOHN CUDMAN, CLERK.

JIM GARFIELD THE SECOND.

Nominating For Senator Just as His Father Was Thirty-six Years Ago.

Will history repeat itself? is a question James R. Garfield is doubtless asking himself nowadays. Like his father, the martyr president, he is a lawyer, and a graduate of Williams college and entering politics at the age of 28, like his father, 26 years ago. He has been married little more than a year, and, strange to relate, like his father, too, he has been nominated for state senator of Ohio in the very Portage-Summitt district that elected James A. Garfield state senator in 1859. Another odd thing in connection with young Garfield's nomination is the fact that July 2, the day he received the nomination, was the fourteenth anniversary of the day when the bullet of assassin Charles Jules Guiteau laid his distinguished father low.

In all probability James R. Garfield would like to be state senator, dashing and successful brigadier general, eloquent and powerful congressman, United States senator and president of the world's greatest republic, but at this point he will quite naturally desire history to cease repeating itself. Young Garfield enters politics in much the same manner that his father did, but there is a very marked difference in their financial conditions at the age of 28 years. James A. Garfield had fought a hard fight with poverty from earliest boyhood and was still poor. James R. Garfield is rich, and his wife is heir to a cool million.

In many ways young Jim Garfield, as his friends call him, is said to be a chip of the old block, but he is particularly desirous to win his battles strictly on his own merits and is very reluctant to trade on the great fame of his sire. It is his ambition to gain legislative experience in the Ohio senate and then take his father's old place in congress from the old Nineteenth district that produced such men as Giddings, Wade and James A. Garfield. He is a graduate of the Columbia Law school and has been admitted to practice before the supreme court of Ohio. When he was nominated recently, the principal objection made to him was his very youthful appearance—the very same objection that his father met and overcame in a similar senatorial contest 36 years ago.

THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR MOTHER.

Mrs. Clark and the Great Society She and Her Husband Originated.

Mrs. Harriet Abbott Clark, "mother" of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, is a quiet, modest little woman, scarcely past the first flush of young matronhood. She is the wife of the Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, the "father" of the famous society of young Christian workers. Fourteen years ago Dr. Clark was pastor of Williston church, Portland, Me., and he and his talented wife conceived the idea of forming a society of young people that should supplement the good work the church was doing. The young people entered heartily into the spirit of the affair, the society was soon initiated by other churches, and at the present day Christian Endeavor societies are potent factors in the religious work of thousands of churches all over the world.

Little did Dr. and Mrs. Clark imagine when they formed their little society in Portland that in 14 years societies would

Our doctors remedies had failed, then we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which gave very speedy relief. We regard it as the best medicine ever put on the market for bowel complaints.—Mrs. E. G. Gregory, Fredericktown, Mo.

A Queer Race.

Many queer incidents are to be met with at the public institutions in this city, says the Philadelphia Record. The one that has attracted the most attention from a scientific standpoint for some time past was a race for life or death between a wee black atom of humanity and a white one just as small. At one of the founding hospitals up town the other day a colored male child and a white male child, exactly the same age and weighing the same to the fraction of an ounce, were received at the same time. They were both suffering from the same ailment, which appeared to be rather lack of strength than disease. The pulse and temperature were the same, and they were placed in the incubators at the same time. Here was a capital chance to make a test of the stamina in the two races, and the doctors entered into the affair as heartily as if the little ones were their own. It was a close call for either one at first, but finally the pookaniny seemed to grow stronger. Then the white baby forged ahead, but finally gave way to the colored one. The white youngster never seemed to give up heart. He even looked hopeful, while the black one appeared to view a continuation of the contest as useless. One day the colored baby gave up the struggle and died, but the white youngster took a turn for the better and now looks as if he would live out man's Biblical allotment of years.

The So Called Natural Singer.

The question as to whether or not people can become good singers naturally, by which is meant without professional instruction, is one often asked, writes Frederic Peck in The Ladies Home Journal. There are undoubtedly instances of persons of natural genius learning to sing—that is, to produce the singing voice properly, to vocalize perfectly and to sing with that most artistic essence, good style, from imitation of others and by their own energies and practice. But these cases are unusual. The average "natural"—so called—singer is less pleasing as a performer than his trained fellow, and he is never an artist. To be artistic in accomplishment should be the goal for which every student of every art should strive. The finished performance—using finished in its sense of completion, perfection—is the artistic performance, and its rarity speaks volumes for the lack of continued application in humanity.

Coal! Coal!!

This is a good time to place your orders for next winter's coal. E. M. Copps is again selling it this season, and as low as the lowest. Speak or drop a line to him, or step in to Cadman's drug store.

Mrs. Rhodie Noah, of this place, was taken in the night with cramping pains and the next day diarrhoea set in. She took half a bottle of blackberry cordial but got no relief. She then sent me to see if I had anything that would help her. I sent her a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and the first dose relieved her. Another of our neighbors had been sick for about a week and had tried different remedies for diarrhoea but kept getting worse. I sent him this same remedy. Only four doses of it were required to cure him. He says he owes his recovery to this wonderful remedy.—Mrs. Mary Sibley, Sidney, Mich. For sale by H. D. McCulloch Co.

FOR Royal Baking Powder

BECAUSE inferior and cheaper made baking preparations are sold at wholesale at a price so much lower than ROYAL, some grocers are urging consumers to buy them in place of the ROYAL at the same retail price.

If you desire to try any of the pretended substitutes for ROYAL BAKING POWDER bear in mind that they are all made from cheaper and inferior ingredients, and are not so great in leavening strength nor of equal money value. Pay the price of the ROYAL BAKING POWDER for the ROYAL only.

It is still more important, however, that ROYAL BAKING POWDER is purer and more wholesome and makes better, finer, and more healthful food than any other baking powder or preparation.

Dun's Review for Saturday says that a business flood so strong and rapid that the conservative fear it may do harm is out of season in July. But the seasons this year lap over and crowd each other. May frosts and frosts, it is now evident, kept back much business that would naturally have been finished before midsummer, and the delayed culmination of one season get in the way of efforts to begin another on time. But the volume of business, however it may be measured, is remarkably large for the month even in a good year. Clearing House exchanges for two weeks have been 35 per cent. larger than last year and 6 per cent. larger than in 1902. In that year July payments were naturally 15 per cent. less than in May, but this year are considerably larger than in May. The exaggerated fears about crops have passed, the syndicate is believed both able and determined to protect the Treasury, and the time draws near when the marketing of new crops will turn international balances if speculation does not hinder.

JUDGE WEBB has not yet signified his willingness to accept the vacancy on the supreme court bench. Still three candidates for the supposed future vacancy on the circuit court bench have already been heard from. These are Jas. O. Raymond and D. Lloyd Jones, of Stevens Point, and Geo. R. Gardner, of Grand Rapids. Mr. Gardner is an able lawyer, and a firstclass gentleman, but in case of a vacancy, the appointment should be given to Stevens Point. This is very unquestionable from all the surrounding facts. To give two appointments to Wood county, one following the other, and leave Portage county out in the cold, would be entirely improper and very short-sighted. The governor will certainly see this in the proper light.

Petitions and letters of recommendation have been sent to the governor and secured for all of the three gentlemen above named, some of them coming from all parts of the circuit. This would seem unnecessary, as Messrs. Raymond, Jones and Gardner, are personal and intimate acquaintances of Gov. Upham, but it has been done. The fact that there are two candidates for the appointment in this city, should not prove detrimental to either of them, and can be no excuse for the selection to go to Grand Rapids. Both Mr. Raymond and Mr. Jones have their friends, as the petitions and letters no doubt strongly indicate, but in a large majority of cases those who favored one candidate with their signature, would do so for the other if but one of them was in the field, or they had been approached sooner. To give the appointment to a resident of the home of the present judge, would therefore be unsatisfactory and displeasing to all.

EDITORS TO MEET.

Preparations Being Made for the Coming German Editorial Convention in this City.

There was a meeting, last Saturday evening, of a portion of the committees who have the coming convention of the German editors of the state, in charge. This convention will be held in Stevens Point on the 9th, 10th and 11th of August, and it is proposed to furnish the news gatherers with plenty of entertainment to break the monotony of their business meetings. A concert and ball will be given on the evening of the first day, Friday, with a ride about the city and to various points of interest on Saturday, followed by a sociable and banquet in the evening. On Sunday afternoon there will be an excursion, either by train or carriages to some point, to be decided upon later. Lieut. Gov. Baensch will be present, and Gov. Upham has also promised to be here during the meeting. A fund guaranteeing the payment of necessary expenses, is now being raised by the committee on finance, and another meeting will be held at the First National bank on Friday evening.

Official Premium List.

The official premium list of the coming Great District Fair, will soon be issued. The fair will be held in this city on the 3d, 4th, 5th and 6th of Sept. There has been some delay in preparing the list of premiums and purses, owing to other matters that demanded the attention of the directors, and to get the new book into the hands of our farmers and exhibitors at the earliest possible date, THE GAZETTE and Journal will both give their time to the work, and their representatives will call upon advertisers for their patronage. Between one and two thousand copies will be issued, and the premium list will prove a valuable advertising medium.

Humane Society Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Humane Society will be held in the Hesperus Club rooms, on Tuesday evening, July 23d, at 8 o'clock. An invitation is extended to all interested in this work, to be present.

Low water in the Fox river is proving most disastrous to the business interests of Neenah, Menasha and Appleton. The latter town is suffering more than the others, from all appearances, and owing to a recent order of the Secretary of War, her electric cars have been obliged to stop and the street lights are out. The situation is a very embarrassing one.

The Sunday observance question in Stevens Point, one would judge from reading some of the papers, is assuming alarming proportions. This is about as far as the agitation has gone, however, other than the use of certain personalities, which is to be regretted and is of little good in bringing about the desired end. THE GAZETTE has maintained from the start that the so-called agitation in this city would end as a "tempest in a teapot," is of about as much use or necessity, and can see no reason for changing its mind as yet.

List of Unclaimed Letters

Kellong, J. H.	Utter, J. G.
Mack, George	Vickor, Jack

A Great Game Promised.

There will be a game of base ball, at the fair grounds, next Friday afternoon, at 1 o'clock, between the managers and guests of the Curran House and Hotel McGregor. There is nothing at stake, only the reputation of the respective players, but side bets may be secured either in large or small amounts. There will be lots of fun and much good playing, and all are invited to witness the sport.

Andrew Larson will act as manager for the Commercial club, and the players will be Jos. Ash, John Corcoran, L. E. McGregor, Chas. Vaillencourt, Chas. Wheratt, W. J. Hilbourn, O. A. Cole, F. T. Boston and Henry Johnson.

The Curran House nine is as follows: Henry Sitherwood, Robt. Finch, John Curran, E. J. Dierks, D. A. Taylor, Geo. Hubbard, Prof. Sylvester, Martin Ameson and J. L. Barker.

FAIR IN SEPTEMBER.

The Great District Fair to be Held the First Week in September.

Geo. F. Peabody and M. F. Barteau, of Appleton, B. W. Pulling, of Marshfield, and J. N. Cotter, of Merrill, were in the city yesterday. They came here on invitation of Geo. E. Oster, secretary of the Great District Fair Association, for the purpose of consulting relative to forming a fair and race circuit for central and northern Wisconsin. A meeting was held at the Citizens National bank, in the afternoon, M. Clifford and Mr. Oster representing the local association, while most of the directors were also present for a time. Mr. Peabody acted as chairman of the meeting, and Mr. Oster as secretary. The name of the circuit will be called the Fox and Wisconsin River Valley Race and Fair Circuit, and the coming fair and races will be held as follows: Appleton . . . . . Last week in August Stevens Point . . . . . 1st week in Sept. Marshfield . . . . . 2d week in Sept. Merrill . . . . . 3d week in Sept. The fair at New London has been announced to take place during the third week in September, but an endeavor will be made to have them change it to the fourth week. This move will no doubt be successful, and thereby an excellent circuit will be formed, with an assurance that a fine string of trotting and running horses will be secured for each place.

Each association in the circuit will become a member of the American Trotting Association. An entrance fee of 5 per cent. will be charged for the winners; 5 to enter and 4 to start. Entries will close one week previous to the day of the race. Stalls will be free, but hay, straw, etc., will be charged for. M. Clifford was made permanent president of the circuit, and Geo. E. Oster permanent secretary. The change in date for our fair, it will be noticed, is one week later than heretofore announced.

At a meeting of the board of Normal Regents, held last week, E. D. Coc, of Whitewater, was elected as president to succeed Ira Hill, of Sparta, and D. J. Gardner was chosen vice president to succeed himself. Both selections are good and deserving ones, and fall upon worthy, able shoulders. Maj. S. S. Rockwood was reelected as secretary.

The Milwaukee Journal says that Gov. Upham might give the vacancy on the circuit court bench to his enthusiastic admirer, Frank Lamoreux. The Journal is informed, however, that Frank is not a candidate, and it is extremely doubtful if he would accept the judgeship if it came to him on a silver tray, studded with diamonds. He has a partner, however, who is not so particular in this matter, and is willing to don the judicial gown if it comes his way.

THE SOUTH SIDE.

Personal and News Items of More or Less Importance.

Capt. Lake will preach at the Baptist church, next Sunday, both morning and evening.

John Slowey and wife, of Whiting, left for Portage, last Saturday, to be gone a couple of weeks.

Mrs. H. A. Raymond is instructing at Bancroft for a few days, the guest at L. B. Harlow's home.

Rev. L. G. Carr goes to Waukesha and Palmyra, this week, to be absent until the early part of next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Peickard and children are spending a couple of weeks at Milwaukee, Fond du Lac and Ripon.

Chas. Coughlin, general agent for the Big Four railroad at Urbana, Ohio, has been in the city since Monday evening, visiting his friend of boyhood days, N. F. Lawler.

A young man named Verrill, whose home is on Patch street, had two of his fingers quite badly pinched, while trying to make a coupling in the Central yard, last Sunday. Dr. Atwell is attending him.

The boys at the Central store room have just completed their annual inventory, and when it is taken into consideration that the value of material kept constantly in stock in their department is about $80,000, they have reason to congratulate themselves when the job is finished.

During the noon hour, yesterday, lightning struck a chimney on R. Rheinhardt's house at 611 Center avenue, but besides tearing off a few shingles from the roof and a quantity of plaster from one of the walls below, no material damage was done. No one was in the house at the time, Mr. Rheinhardt being at work on his farm north of the city.

J. S. Seeley, a former most popular Central engineer, is now connected with the Signal Oil works, an immense incorporation, and makes his headquarters at Chicago. "Jack" is as competent as he is worthy, and has hundreds of friends in this city and all along the Central line, from Chicago to St. Paul, who are ever pleased at his success and hope that he has "struck oil in paying quantities."

Chas. McGinty left for Ashland, Sunday night, and will hereafter travel along the Milwaukee and Ashland division of the Northwestern road, as special agent for the Oshkosh Mutual Accident association. Charley has taken a sixty days' layoff as fireman on the Central and if the new duties agree with him physically and financially, he will follow this calling permanently.

Being an all around good fellow and the possessor of a natural "gift of gab," friend Mac will undoubtedly make a success of the venture.

Wm. Dasset, Jr., and wife, of Galion, Ohio, are visiting at the home of the former's parents, East avenue and Ellis street.

The families of Dr. Houlehan, D. F. Bowen and Ed. Rubin, after a pleasant outing at Lake Emily, returned to the city on Monday.

Frank Chamberlain will leave for Waupaca, the latter part of this month, where he will be employed as clerk in J. A. Versen's dry goods store.

The Wisconsin Central railroad will undoubtedly run a special train between this city and Phillips, one week from next Saturday, the 27th inst., when the Phillips people give a grand celebration in honor of the rebuilding of that town. The special will probably leave here at 6:30 a. m. A crew of men who were at work repairing the recently damaged Wisconsin Central water tank, in this city, had a narrow escape from serious injury, last Friday morning. They were at work upon a scaffolding, over twenty feet high, when it gave way and three of them were precipitated to the ground. Dan. Arnold, Wm. Calkins and Luke Clark were all considerably shaken up, the first named receiving a number of bruises, but he has now about fully recovered.

Last winter a republican legislature, contrary to promises of its party leaders, directed that the judgments against ex-State Treasurers Bactz and Kuehn and the balance against E. C. McPetridge, should be satisfied—or in other words, should go uncollected. The amounts thus released aggregated $219,547.19. As soon as the legislature passed this unjust law, it was taken to Gov. Upham, who signed it without hesitation. Atty. Gen. Mylrea held out, however, recognizing that a grave mistake had been made, and believing that the law was unconstitutional. Now it is Mr. Mylrea who has changed his mind, and after receiving several opinions, including that of ex-Chief Justice Cole, he says it is his plain duty to take the final steps toward carrying out the wishes of the legislature. The three ex-treasurers mentioned above, one of whom is a Democrat and two Republicans, took nearly a quarter of a million in money belonging to the people of Wisconsin, a republican legislature said they should keep their ill-gotten wealth, and now we learn that this unjust action is constitutional. The people will keep the facts in mind for future action.

JUDGE WEBB CHOSEN.

Last Wednesday THE GAZETTE said that Gov. Upham could do a handsome thing by appointing Judge Webb to the vacancy on the Supreme Court bench. The Governor evidently held the same view of the situation, for the next day the appointment of Judge Webb was announced. The appointment came without solicitation on the part of Judge Webb, and is therefore the more appreciated, and especially as the relations existing between him and Upham have not been the most cordial for several years. He was at Chippewa Falls at the time, hearing a case for Judge Marshall, who was an active candidate for the supreme vacancy, and the latter was as badly disappointed when the selection was announced as Judge Webb was surprised. Everybody in this part of the state was pleased, and from all sections come expressions of approval, the bar voicing the sentiment of the people in speaking of Judge Webb as an able and fearless jurist, an honest man and a worthy citizen. He spent a few hours in Stevens Point on Friday, at which time he had not yet made up his mind whether or not he would accept the appointment, there being several reasons why he should not, the chief being his pleasant home life at Grand Rapids, where himself and family have spent so many years. And then again the appointment is only for a few months, as an election next spring must decide whether or not he would be his own successor, and this for a term of one year, when another election must be held.

Judge Chas. M. Webb is about 62 years of age, and has been a resident of Wisconsin since boyhood, and of Grand Rapids since the war, in which he served his country for about one year. He was in the state senate in 1888 and 1889. He was appointed United States district attorney under the Hayes administration and subsequently served a short term in the United States land office at Deadwood, Dak. On the death of Judge Gilbert M. Park, in 1883, Webb was appointed judge of the Seventh judicial district by Gov. Rusk, and has been twice re-elected without opposition.

TO HELP MAN IN WAR BRUTES AND BIRDS IN FUTURE MILI- TARY OPERATIONS.

Swallows Said to Be Surer Than Pigeons as Messengers—How Elephants and Dogs Are Employed—The Goose Not So Stupid When Performing Guard Duty.

When the next European war comes it is more than probable that it will have a novel and picturesque point of military interest about it in the employment of animals, which will play quite as important a part in the campaigns in their way as the generals and soldiers. Ever since the earliest days of war—from the very beginning of things, that is—horses have, of course, been military aids of the greatest value. Now it is planned—indeed several of the European powers are actively making experiments—to draft other animals into the service, with the expectation that they will be of great help.

France, during the times of the Franco-German conflict, brought the science of carrier pigeons up to a high standard of efficiency. Then it was thought that no superior to this little bird could be found as a carrier of dispatches. But the French military authorities are beginning to think differently now. Experiments have been made with the swallow, and he has proved to be swifter, surer and altogether more satisfactory. There is the greatest probability, therefore, that swallows will be part of the army equipment for the next campaign.

A new idea has sprung up in French military circles nevertheless that after all it is rather imprudent for a great army to entrust its messages, frequently of great moment, to such small birds, so subject to attacks from the great birds of prey that are continually on the outlook for such as they. It has been proposed that storks be trained for dispatch service, the theory being that the "nest instinct" in these birds, their swift, certain flight, their tremendous wing and leg power and their strength to meet any attack whatsoever in the air would render them ideal messengers of war.

The stork certainly could combat successfully any hawk and almost any eagle.
Besides, his splendid strength would make it possible for a great bundle of dispatches, of a weight and size that a dozen carrier pigeons or swallows would be unable to convey, to be sent at once under one cover.

In Russia a theory a good deal like this has already been put into practice, and a number of falcions have been put into training for the Russian army dispatch service and have proved eminently satisfactory.
The falcon himself is a most warlike bird and evidently resists every attack made upon him. Warsaw and Brest-Litewski, on the western frontier, have been the seats of these experiments.

As to animals pure and simple, the elephant cannon drawers in use in the British army in India are very familiar, and from the days of the earliest British possession there, have done magnificent service. In fact, they were indispensable in the early campaigns. The camels of the east are also valuable adjuncts in the battles and forced marches around desert regions because of their tremendous powers of endurance.

But it has been reserved for Germany to bring forward dogs as war animals. An exhibition of "war dogs" has recently been held in Dresden and some splendid specimens of canine warriors shown. As an attacking column these dogs will show a formidable front against the soldiery of any other nation, and as discouragers of hesitancy during the retreat of an enemy they will prove invaluable to the regiment possessing them. Brigades of dragoons and hussars will doubtless be superceded by dog platoons. The only difficulty that the German officers foresee is teaching the dogs to keep ranks until the order "Charge!" is given. Internal discussions over bones and rations are also to be feared. Yet, at all events, there will be no difficulty in getting the now-famous warriors to advance upon the enemy in spite of shot and shell.

Even that traditionally stupid animal the goose—stupid in spite of the fact that she is reported to have saved Rome at one time—has a possibility of military glory under the new ideas. There is an authentic incident of a Bavarian regiment of light hussars, stationed at Ingolstadt, Germany, who adopted a young goose during their stay there and made it, through kindness, become so tame that it was quite the pet of the regiment. It showed its gratitude by assuming the responsibility of sentry duty and remaining faithfully in the vicinity of the sentry box each day from sunrise to sunset.

There was no need whatever for the sentry to keep careful guard or even to walk up and down, for the goose—this is a historic incident—kept her eye open, and when any one approached would set up a tremendous squawking. The sentry could go to sleep if he pleased—and indeed many of them did—yet, strange to say, no sentry during the goose's sojourn in the camp was ever caught napping or found wanting. In fact, the soldiers used to say that the goose did the best duty in the regiment—New York World.

Skulls as Medicine.
That belief the Chinese have in the remedial qualities of substances forming a part of the human body seems to be irradicable. Thinking that Europeans still entertained the same silly ideas led as much as anything else to the Tien-tai massacres of 25 years ago. Prehistoric man drank from a human skull, believing that the uncanny goblet had a certain potency.
Not so long ago, the skull of a suicide was used in Calcutta as a drinking cup for the cure of epilepsy. Even cases have been cited when superstitious people within the last 30 years have dug up bodies, so as to possess themselves of skulls for the same purpose.

As late as 1678, in the official pharmaceutical of the London College of Physicians, mention is made "of the skull of a man who had died a violent death." For centuries in the past, for the manufacture of certain quack nostrums, notably anoint-ment, ground skulls were used. The medical books of Nuremberg of 200 years ago always cite mummies—or the embalmed flesh of mummies—as a sovereign cure for certain diseases. The Egyptian mummy was a specific for one malady, the Tenebrifera mummy for another.—New York Times.

Indian Racers.

Notwithstanding their reputation for speed, the Indian racers of the northwest and Canada have repeatedly been beaten by white men, while in wrestling they never attain the skill of the whites and do not seem to learn boxing at all.

POETRY'S AUBREY BEARDSLEY.

Stephen Crane and His Queer Book of Whitmanesque Verses.

Stephen Crane, the "Aubrey Beardsley of Poetry," whose queer book, "The Black Riders and Other Lines," is the most eccentric, the most talked of and the most abused book of verse that has appeared in many a day, is a young Bohemian newspaper man of New York city. He is pallid of face, short in stature, slender in build, modest and unassuming in manner. He plays a first class game of poker and chops his poetical lines into varying lengths with a literary hatchet. He scorns the limitation of rhyme and meter and seems to be a disciple of Walt Whitman. There are people who think he is a genius and a rising light in literature, and "there are others." The latter class think his verses are barren of talent.

Crane is 23 years of age and has been writing for the press since he was 16.
Three or four years ago he published a novel called "Maggie, a Girl of the Streets," under the pen name of Johnson Smith, but the book was so unconventional and so daring in its treatment of the slum life it described that the publishers dared not place their imprint upon it. Hamlin Garland, who was apparently much impressed by the genius of the young author, wrote, "With such a technique already in command, with life mainly before him, Stephen Crane is to be henceforth reckoned with." Mr.
Garland's interest led him to look up the young novelist and introduce him to William Dean Howells, who, it is said, looks upon Crane as a very promising young devotee of the muses.

For about a year Crane has been doing syndicated writing, and a second novel,
"The Red Badge of Courage," describing the adventures of a recruit under fire in the civil war, was published in serial form and proved very successful.
It is said that all the stanzas in his little volume "The Black Riders" were written in a sudden fit of inspiration in three days. The following is a sample of the young poet's lines:

Should the wide world roll away, Leaving black terror,
Limitless night,
Nor God nor man nor place to stand Would be to me essential, It there and thy white arms were there,
And the fall to doom a long way.

WEATHER SHARP MOORE.

His Wonderful Record in Predicting Storms That Arrived as Advertised.

When it comes to taking snapshots at the weather of the future, Professor Willis L. Moore, Uncle Sam's new head weather sharp, can plunk the bullseye nearly every time. He can scent a cyclone farther away than the most experienced Kansas farmer, and his feet ache every time a storm gets within 1,000 miles of them. Mr. Moore has been in the service a score of years, is a Republican and won the place he now occupies strictly on his merits as a forecaster. For some time past he has been weather prophet in Chicago at a salary of $2,500 a year, and his promotion to the head of the weather bureau in Washington means a future salary of $4,000 a year.

He was educated at the signal service military school in Fort Myer, Va., and began his career as a weather sharp at the age of 21 years. There were 80 bright young men in his class at the school, but he displayed such rare aptitude for the work and such industry that when graduation time came he stood second in the class in point of merit. In 1886 he became sergeant, receiving his promotion because he devised "new, economical, expeditious mechanical methods of issuing daily weather forecasts and maps," and was at once assigned to the preparation of meteorological charts. Later he was assigned to the chief office in the Minneapolis weather bureau, where the correctness of his predictions won favorable mention from Secretary Risk.

About a year ago a weather bureau professorship was to be awarded, and 30 scientific experts entered a competitive examination for the honor. Of the 30 Mr. Moore ranked highest, and when Professor Harrington resigned as head of the bureau recently Moore's record was not forgotten. While in charge of the Chicago weather bureau last March Moore made a remarkable record. He predicted 130 cold waves, 115 of which arrived on schedule time. He also accurately predicted the cold wave that ruined the Florida orange crop last December, and during last January, February and March 27 of 30 severe winter storms predicted for Lake Michigan swept the lake as Moore said they would.

Seventy-five per cent of the enlistments in the regular army last year were of Americans.

A CANOE PARADE.

Charming Festival Given by Summer Visitors at Bar Harbor.

Turning from Lenox and its environs to the far northeasterly end of our Atlantic coast line, we find on the rocky shores of Mount Desert new and elaborate examples of the rural festival. Long years ago, before that rare and charming isle had been factually adopted as the chosen resort of summer pilgrims from all parts of the continent, athletic contests, foot races and canoe races among the Passamaquoddy Indians were known to Bar Harbor. By the descendants of those Indians was aroused the interest in canoeing shown by visitors of recent times which resulted in the formation of the Canoe club, now numbering hundreds of members.

The first public parade of the club was arranged in honor of an expected visit from Matthew Arnold, who, in discussing his anticipated expedition to that Eden of the sea, had expressed a hope that he might there find some spectacle possessing the true local color which he had failed to discover elsewhere in America. Marshaled in line, with bows toward the south, upon a fortunately glassy stretch of Frenchman's bay, near the westerly point of Bar Island, gathered a number of flower wreathed canoes to perform a series of maneuvers as dexterous in execution as ingenious in the planning.

The canoe parade, repeated the following year, was followed in another season by an illuminated fete. To this midsummer night's dream nature lent herself in all graciousness. The sun had set upon a sea of opal. As the moon rose and the tide flooded the bar, people living along the shore on each side of the Eden road sat in their verandas to wait for the coming of the boats, in an atmosphere as soft and carressing as that of a June night in Venice. From the starting place at the chief landing of the village, out of darkness stroked with columns of light from the electric arcs above the town and from the lamps of a flotilla of yachts and other boats at anchor in the harbor, came silently stealing a long train of mysterious black craft tossing leashes of fire bubbles into the air or wreathed from stem to stern with multicolored lanterns. Their destination was a dwelling situated upon the shore at some distance up the bay, where the performers were expected ultimately to congregate at supper. For an hour the merrymakers of the fire laden boats gave delight to many watchers ashore. At last, answering the signal of dance music from the house, the cortege fell again into line and proceeded to disembark upon a floating wharf lighted by bengal fires and strung with colored lanterns. The boats, deserted by their crews, were then strung together by boatmen and towed back to the starting point, the rowers electing to return by the highways.—Mrs. Burton Harrison in Century.

Bohemian Dancing.
There were many merry and grotesque dances among the early Bohemians, although the church was often hostile. Some of them remind us of the Whitsun ales and the village festivities which had such a charming laureate in Robert Herrick.
Those were indeed days when Merrily went their labor And merrily went their toils.

But gradually, owing to the spread throughout the country of religious opinions very much corresponding to those of our own Puritans, the dance became an object of spiritual censure.
It was in the sixteenth century that the thunders of the church began to be directed against it with the greatest severity.
None was more forward in these attacks than the members of the Bohemian brotherhood. One chapter of our author's book is devoted to an account of these opponents.
In 1526 and 1566 the diets passed laws in restraint of the excesses of dancing. But one of the greatest of its enemies was the famous Simon Lomnicky, an author who plays a conspicuous part in the Bohemian troubles at the end of the sixteenth and beginning of the seventeenth century.

Still, for all these philippics, dances went on among the Bohemians on saints' days and holidays in the market place and around the maypole. The peasants had a hard time of it, but they still danced, just as the Polish rustics did in spite of the grievous corvée, or as even in the old times of serfdom the Russian moujik enjoyed his chorod in the evening.—Saturday Review.

A Much Puzzled Husband.

There is one married man living who was badly frightened the other night. He sent a note to his wife about 9 o'clock to say that he would not be home until late.
The messenger boy when he delivered the note to the wife happened to mention that he had gone to the wrong house and had been very worthily treated by a man for disturbing him. The wife read the note, which was on a scrap of paper. She thought a minute. Then she said to the messenger boy:

"I'll give you a shilling if you will take the note back to my husband and tell him that story without saying that you came here at all."

The boy pocketed the money and went back to the husband with the note.
"Well, why do you bring this back?" he asked.

"Because they wouldn't take it. A man came to the door and told me if I didn't go away he would break my neck for me." The husband did not stay out late that evening. On the contrary, he got home as fast as the underground train could take him. He looked suspiciously at his wife and said:

"I sent a note, but the boy must have taken it to the wrong house."

"I suppose so," said the wife innocently.
"I haven't got it."

The man was dying to find out if anybody had called, but he was afraid to ask.
—Pearson's Weekly.

Where Knowledge Counted.
"Thirty days in solitary confinement," was the sentence pronounced against Jim Webster by an Austin judge.

"Thirty days?" asked the man.

"Thirty days," was the response.

"Look here, boss, you gib me 30 days las' winter for de same 'fense when de days was a heap shorter den dey is now.
Ain't you gwine ter allow de usual discount ob de sodicler?"

A look of intelligence appeared on the judicial face and spread all over it. The judge said, "I'll make it 20."

"Tell me dat book learning don't do a nigrah no good! I gets out ten days sooner, all owing to my habin studied up de symptoms ob zodiacs," remarked Jim Webster as the constable led him off to jail.—Texas Sittings.

HE IS CUBA'S FRIEND.

OUR CONSUL AT HAVANA SYMPA-THIZES WITH THE PATRIOTS.

He Is a Fearless Champion of American Interests, and Although Spain Eyes Him Anxious He Has the Steadfast Support of His Own Government.

It is quite possible that the end of the present uprising in Cuba may be similar to the termination of every previous revolt there, but neither those who are actually engaged in the row nor those acting as their agents in the United States and various South American countries believe it. They hold that victory must eventually perch upon the banners of the insurgents, despite the many setbacks so far recorded against their cause.

From all accounts they do not include the return of the United States consul general, Mr. Raymond O. Williams, among the setbacks. Mr. Williams is a Brooklyn man, aged about 55, but still good for many years of usefulness, and has passed nearly half of his busy life on the soil of Cuba. While yet but a young man he went thither to engage in mercantile pursuits, and in 1871, when he was appointed vice consul, was among the most prominent of all Americans in business on the island. For 13 years he served as vice consul, and then,

RAYMOND O. WILLIAMS

In 1884, President Arthur promoted him to the higher post which he has held ever since. During the 11 years that have since elapsed he has performed the important duties of his position to the general satisfaction of the American contingent, but on various occasions his course has not been altogether pleasing to the Spanish authorities. In 1889 the Madrid government became very much incensed against him, on the assumption that he had furnished "alarming news" to the press. His most recent difficulty with the Spaniards arose from his making a demand that two American citizens, arrested on the charge of having had communication with the rebels, should be tried by the civil and not by the military courts.

On both these occasions Mr. Williams placed his resignation in the hands of the Federal authorities at Washington, but it was accepted on neither, although he was temporarily recalled when the last trouble came up, and made a long and complete explanation of his course and the situation with regard to American citizens in Cuba to President Cleveland. It may be that his resignation would have been accepted this time, but for the protests sent to the president by large numbers of business men and capitalists, who declared Mr. Williams' presence in Cuba at this time to be essential to the maintenance of the dignity of the American government there and the safety of the life and property of Americans doing business on the island. At all events, the consul general has been sent back to his post and has been vested with powers that are practically discretionary and not often bestowed upon any government representative of lesser rank than a minister or an ambassador.

It is hard to speak with intelligence of the general feeling in the United States regarding the Cuban cause, but there is no doubt that much money has been sent by American sympathizers to aid the uprising nor that more men have gone from the United States to fight for Cuban independence than is generally known.

Much of the money sent there has been raised in New York, where, through the presence in that city of many wealthy Cuban families and hundreds of Cuban cigar makers, there is an intense if not very widely diffused pro-Cuban sentiment. At the beginning of the present year it was estimated that the Cuban colony there numbered about 1,500, less than at any time during the last two or three decades. But what the thousand and a half Cubans of New York lack in numbers they make up in devotion, and there is hardly one of them who has not contributed of his savings to help in the fight against further Spanish domination. One man declared the other day that he had been saving up for ten years with this end in view and added that his compatriots had all been taking the same course for quite as long a period. According to this man, even the women and girls in the cigar factories have contributed regularly from their small earnings to the treasury of the patriots.

It is pretty evident from all indications that important developments are expected during the present summer.
Daily, so the reports say, the number of the native Cubans who have declared for independence is growing, and daily the climate of the island is showing how deadly it is to the Spanish born soldiers who are fighting the insurgents, the Spanish death rate being from 100 to 300 a day. As soon as Marti's successor gets well in the harness some heavy fighting is expected, and victory is confidently looked for by the Cubans.

ON A MODERN CRUISER.

The Old Time Sailor Objects to the New Fangled Methods.

Curiously enough, the old shellbacks in the navy are down on the soldiers' home.
They don't want a "snug harbor." They insist upon staying upon a cruising man-of-war, and when they die they want to be buried at sea. But the officers say that these old sea dogs are very troublesome on a modern cruiser, where everything is different from what they were accustomed to when they learned their trade. They object to the new fangled equipment and the improvements and conveniences that have been introduced on modern vessels. They object to sitting down at a table and eating their meals off china plates, with knives and forks, like civilized people, instead of taking their rations in little wooden tins and squatting down on their haunches in the shelter of the lee gunwale while they cut up their "salt horse" with a jackknife. They object to scrubbing the decks with a new fangled rubber arrangement instead of the old holystones, and refuse to obey electric signals because they have been accustomed to hear the officers yell at them from the bridge of the quarter deck.

Nowadays the galleys on board of men-of-war are capable of cooking fresh bread for the sailors every day, which is a serious grivance to the old fashioned "Jackies," who prefer hard tack to raised biscuits and rolls. A large supply of fresh meats is now carried in the patent refrigerators on board all the ships and served to the sailors, alternating with salt beef and pork, at least once a day. This is emphatically objected to by the veterans as an effeminate departure from the ration they received when they were apprenticed in history to (tins).

The sailors of a vessel that was recently in Montevideo and Buenos Ayres were served with tenderloin steaks for several weeks because fresh meat was found to be cheaper than salt pork down in that great cattle country, but after about a week a committee from the forecabin waited upon the captain and said they desired to make complaint about their grub. He was much surprised at the suggestion, because he supposed they were being unusually well fed, and remarked that they were receiving the same supplies that were furnished himself and the officers in the wardroom.
They admitted that this might be true, and added that it was exactly what they were "kicking" about. The boys didn't like tenderloin steaks; they "wanted something they could chew on."—Chicago Record.

Beard Growth of a Lifetime.

If you are proud of a fresh shave and a smooth face, you visit the barber at least twice a week or probably every other day.
Suppose you commenced this practice at the age of 17 and continued it up to the age of 70, have you any idea of the total length of the beard that would be removed in that time? If your beard grows as rapidly as that of the average man, you must have about one-fifth of an inch removed each week, or 10 9/16 inches each year. Between the ages of 17 and 70 years 53 years must intervene, and each of these 53 years gives almost a foot of beard growth, or a total of 530 inches, exclusive of fraction, or, to be more exactly exact, 44 feet and 2 inches of beard!

The above is all figured on the assumption that the filaments of the beard maintain their average growth of one-fifth of an inch during the period mentioned, which, of course, is out of the question.
There is all the difference in the world in beard growth. Some men will raise a "stubble field" one-fourth of an inch in length, while another will hardly raise enough to roughen his face. Then, again, we do not wish to be understood as saying that a man would grow half a hundred feet of beard in a lifetime provided he never shaved. On the contrary, the average man would not grow more than 2 1/2 feet. On reaching a length of 18 to 20 inches the beard invariably becomes brittle or splits and after this the growth is very slow or ceases entirely.—St. Louis Republic.

Even a Tramp of Value.

I was searching for a building in the heart of the city. The wind was blowing a gale, and great clouds of dust swept up into my face. My yell had come loose, and I expected each moment to see my hat roll off into the tangle of horse cars and dray wagons around the corner. Not a policeman in sight, nor a drug store, and I didn't know the number of the building.
I came to a dead end, and I stopped. I was all I had to direct me. I stopped several ladies and inquired of every street vendor in the neighborhood. No one knew. A carriage stood waiting in front of a prominent retail store. The driver looked as if he might be able to speak the English language, which some of the numerous people I had asked were not, and I repeated my query to him. He had never heard of the place. As I turned and gave a last despairing look for a policeman a man stepped from a corner and spoke to me. He was the most deplorable specimen of the much despised city tramp it has ever been my lot to meet, and involuntarily I shrank back. He said simply, "It's that tall, dark building there at the end of the street." With a grateful word of thanks I hurried on, wondering if he had expected or would have been offended if I had offered him a quarter.

And I realized the dependence of the human race on even its lowliest representatives.—New York Herald.

Flowers and Their Stems.

Every now and then florists and other authorities rise up and declare that it is no longer "good form" to keep flowers in clear glass through which their stems show. That is very much like saying that it is no longer "good form" to have long eyelashes or rosy cheeks. The stem of a graceful flower is one of its greatest beauties. Seen through a bit of clear crystal with tiny globules of water incrusting it, it is almost as much of an ornament as the blossom which it supports. Until nature begins to produce ugly stems nothing will be more appropriate for holding flowers than well shaped glass vases. Occasionally a bit of colored glass is permissible. There is a delicate green variety and a faint amethyst kind, both of which add to the beauty of the stems they reveal.

Inherited Teeth.
Teeth either strong and well shaped or frail and not perfectly formed are largely ours by inheritance. The law of heredity is indeed invariable, and unto the third and fourth generation one can easily trace the virtues and the excesses of our forefathers.—Kansas City Times.

GAUDEAMUS IGITUR.

Let us live, then, and be glad While youth life's best days After youthful pastime had,
After old age hard and sad, Earth will stumble o'er us.

Where are they who in this world Ever keep their hearts young?
Go ye to the gods above;
Go to hell; inquire thereof.
They are not; they're sleeping.

Brief life, and brevity Briefly shall be ended.
Death comes like a whirlwind strong, Bears us with his blast along;
None shall be defended.

Live this university,
Men that learning nourish.
Live each member of the name, Long live all that bear its name!
Let them ever flourish!

Live the commonwealth also,
And the men who guide it!
Live our town in strength and health, Founders, patrons, by whose wealth
We are here provided!

Live all girls! A health to you, Meeting maids and beautiful!
Live the wives and women, too, Gentle, loving, kind and true!
Good, industrious, dutiful!

Perish cars that pile and pile!
Perish envious bladders!
Die the devil, thin and vain!
Die the starch necked Philistine, Scuffers and defamers!

MADE HIM EAT IT.

The Policeman Would Have No Man Flourishing a Pistol There.

The boys are telling a rather good story on a Fargo citizen and police officer, which runs something like this: The citizen had purchased a candy revolver for his little boy, which closely resembled a genuine weapon. The other night he was in the ladies' waiting room at the Northern Pacific awaiting the arrival of No. 2, smoking a cigarette. It's against the rules to smoke in this room, and when the officer stopped in he detected the smell of smoke, and after sizing up the crowd finally located the citizen calmly smoking away.

"Here," said the officer, "if you want to smoke, you will have to go outside."
"Don't you talk to me that way," replied the cigarette smoker, "or I'll blow you full of holes." As he said this he drew the candy weapon from his pocket and leveled it at the officer. The candy was wrapped with tinfoil and looked like a sure enough revolver. The crowd, at least, took no chances. Convinced there was going to be a shooting and that a "copper" or somebody was going to be killed, there was a unanimous desire among the bystanders not to witness the slaughter of the devoted guardian of the peace. Even one made an attempt at the same time to reach the door. Several might have been injured if the prompt action of the police officer had not prevented the panic that seemed imminent. He seized the citizen's right arm and pushed it up and back so that if the candy revolver was discharged it would be in the air. Then he shouted, "You are under arrest!" and led him out into the hallway, which was soon crowded.
The citizen still held the candy revolver, which looked formidable enough in the dim light. He seemed to have lost his bold front and was trembling with fear.

In faltering tones he said: "Don't put me under arrest. I would rather eat this revolver than be locked up in a police cell."
"Well," said the officer, "I'll let you go."
"You eat that revolver, and I'll let you go."
"All right," he returned, and to the amazement of every one, including the officer, he put the barrel into his mouth and bit off a large section. Before the crowd recovered from its surprise the trigger had disappeared from view, and by the time the officer had discovered that he had been the victim of a joke the revolver had been eaten.—Fargo Forum.

Only a Question of Time.

"That little bill," said the debtor pleasantly. "Oh, yes, of course. Well, you need not worry about that any more. I've got things down to a system now."
"You've been a long time doing it," suggested the creditor.

"I realized," returned the debtor, "but it's all right now. You see, $30 is more than I can afford to let go of at any one time, but now I can get it together without missing it. You see, a man never misses his small change, so I've bought a little bank that I can drop it into every-nights. You've no idea how fast it accumulates."

"I've heard of the plan before," said the creditor. "If a man lives up to it and doesn't hold out on the bank, it mounts up rapidly."

"Oh, I live up to it," protested the debtor. "I put every cent of small change into it every night, and it's all for you."

"I may hope then!"
"My dear sir, you may more than hope.
The system makes the payment in full an absolute certainty. It overcomes all obstacles, and it's only a question of time!"
"How much time?"

"Well, that's rather difficult to say.
You see, the amount of small change I find in my pockets varies, and—"

"What do you call small change?"
"Pennies. I— What's that? Oh, well, and if you want to. That's what a man gets for trying to do the right thing!"

Dr. Parkhurst on Early Marriages.

It is closely in keeping with the whole train of argument to say a word in regard to early marriages, writes the Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst, D. D., in an article on "The Safeguards of Marriage," in The Ladies Home Journal. That is the natural order of events. Divine intention seems quite distinct upon the matter. Such marriages when properly consummated are a means of personal establishment and security to the parties implicated. For a young man or a young woman to be wholesomely married is the next step to being regenerated.
To be out of that condition is counter to nature, and to disregard nature subjects to all kinds of exposure. It is sometimes forgotten that nature's arrangements and intentions are in the nature of a divine ordination, which may be of the same authoritativeness as though drafted literally and included in the decalogue.

Arab Churning.

Among the Arabs a practice from time immorial has prevailed of churning by placing the milk in leather skins, which are shaken or beaten until the butter comes. A bag of milk is tied to a short pole, the other end of which is fastened to a saddle and the horse made to trot.

It is a curious fact that in all a man's theories about how to achieve success none of them includes hard work.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

NAMING JAPANESE CHILDREN.

There are three methods, two of them being the Shinto belief. The Shinto belief is the oldest of the Japanese religions, antedating perhaps the Christian religion, and having been obscured by Buddhism for quite a number of centuries, has been revived. The method of naming children, it seems, is quite a curious one, there being three ways in use by the followers of Shinto, the way of the...

Which ever the god takes out first is the god given name the child is to bear, a convenient custom when the father is in doubt between the far eastern equivalents of Tom, Dick or Harry. This is a ceremony which takes place when the infant is a week old. It is not to be confounded with the miya mari, which takes place a month after birth and is not our christening at all, but akin to the Hebrew presentation at the temple. For at the miya mari the child, named some weeks before, is presented to its guardian god and formally put under his protection.

This third method of getting a name for the child is through one of the possessions or trances which are so common in the religious ceremonies of these people. The priest goes into his trance, and his assistant asks him, or rather the god through him, what is the proper name, and the god makes reply.

This method of christening one's child is reputed the most holy of the three and is only practiced by the ultra devout. Of the population of Japan about 80 per cent, it is estimated, are thus named by the god, or the god, about 10 per cent by each. —Occult Japan.

FIRE IN THE RAIN.

A French Duel That Was Fought From Under an Umbrella.

Why certain encounters have become celebrated and others are suffered to be almost forgotten would make a curious study. Such is the fact, however. Sometimes the duel is connected with a joke, as that of Sainte-Beuve and Dubois, when the popularity becomes more understandable.

It was at the time when Sainte-Beuve was writing in The Globe and Dubois was one of the stockholders. The latter took offense at the political tendencies which the celebrated writer was giving to the paper. "Vivacious injuries" were exchanged by pen and word of mouth, and a meeting was judged necessary.

On arriving at the meeting place Sainte-Beuve was seen to be carrying a pair of flintlock pistols of the sixteenth century, while sheltering himself under an umbrella. It was raining steadily. Sainte-Beuve continued to hold up his umbrella over to the moment when the word of "Fire!" was to be given. The witnesses protested.

Sainte-Beuve insisted. "I am willing to be killed," he said, "but I am not willing to catch a cold in the head."

They were forced to accept the condition, and the great writer shot from under his umbrella. Four balls were exchanged without result. Later on, when Sainte-Beuve had rallied to the empire of Napoleon III, while remaining faithful to "liberty of thought," he did not hesitate to defend his beliefs in the French senate. One of his colleagues, Lacroix, considered himself offended and provoked a duel. But the friend of the Princess Mathilde wittily refused to fight, except with the arm with which he was most familiar—the pen.

In recent times Paul de Cassagnac, the sharp tongued editor of the Bonapartist L'Autorite, after having proved his courage in 17 encounters, made use of the same joke when provoked by a fellow journalist who was a notoriously bad speller. He had the choice of weapons, and he chose orthography. —Boston Herald.

Signing Letters.

Sombody has been writing about the "bad form" which Americans commonly follow in the matter of signing letters. It is pointed out that in formal notes, in England, everybody still signs "your obedient servant," and that informal communications are generally signed "yours truly" or "yours sincerely."

Our American fashion of signing "cordially," "faithfully," and so on, is condemned as being altogether un-English. This may be quite true without altogether putting it out of "form." And if we have not sufficient ingenuity or boldness to enable us to be original in such a matter, we certainly show our American good sense in habitually employing adverbs which mean something like "cordially" and "faithfully."

CLAP-TRAP.

The New York Tribune discovers that the business revival has been made possible by the election of a high tariff congress; and all the Tribune's little satellites chime in with their little echoes.

The explanation will hardly satisfy most people. The congressional election, that is alleged to have brought in the revival, was held early in November, 1894. There were no strong indications of improved business conditions until April, 1895. This was five months after the election. The upward movement was not very pronounced until late in May, or nearly seven months after the election.

Some people will be rude enough to say that a republican victory which requires seven months in which to put moral pressure on business, must have had something the matter with its health.

But the folly of the claim of the republican editors is so apparent, to any who thinks, that it is hardly worth notice. It is very certain congress can pass no tariff legislation of the republican kind, for nearly two years—that is, during the existence of the congress. Therefore, to talk of its election as having stimulated a revival, through the prospect of its repealing the present tariff, is something weaker than ordinary buncombe; isn't good nonsense.

The truth is, the farsighted manufacturers of the country have, voluntarily, raised the wages of not less than 500,000 employees, knowing they must pay those wages for at least a year and that such payment would cost them hundreds of millions of dollars more than the wages they were paying last March. Did the masters thus obligate themselves to the men, because Republican Jones went in and Democrat Smith went out? Or have the wages been raised on the hope that the republicans will carry the house and senate and President in 1896, and on the further hope that this combine will re-enact McKinley's law, along in 1898? This sort of thing might be amusing if its mendacity and impudence were not revolting.

NEW YORK'S NAME.

Not So Bad as It Would Have Been Had New York's Old Name Survived. Now that New York's name is under discussion, it is well to be thankful that the contraction of old York's original Eusewio took place before the qualifying "New" was added, for if York had New Eusewio would be unbearable. York's still earlier name of Eborac would have gone no better with "New," and her Celtic name of Caer Eborac would have been even worse than any of the others with a third element prefixed.

The syllable "wic," which has almost disappeared in the contraction of Eusewio to York, is rather the Saxon word, meaning an abiding place, than the Danish wic, meaning a station for ships—surely an appropriate suffix for so great a seaport as the chief commercial city of the new world.

New York is really not worse off, however, in the matter of its name than a good many other cities are or have been. York, with or without the New, is better than Mudtown, which is no unfair translation of Lutetia, the ancient Roman name for Paris, bestowed upon the city of the Parliaments of its mud houses. London, by the way, takes its name from the fortified hill of the Britons where St. Paul's cathedral now stands. Dublin is a name concealing two unattractive syllables meaning the black pool, and Liverpool is literally the pool of the living creatures, so called because wild fowl abounded upon the waters of a pool near the site of the city. Brussels is conjectured to mean either swamp or thicket, and Rome may be merely the early Latin equivalent of the cross roads, from the fact that local lines of travel met at the Forum. Berlin is conjectured to mean the short lake. Other guessers take it as the free and open place, the river island and the marshy spot.

Names that are commonly accepted as of but a single word often contain a phrase of a whole sentence. Constantinople and Valparaiso are familiar examples. Pernambuco sounds well to English ears, but means the mouth of hell. Cairo, which has been mistaken by European ignorance for the name of the city, is really a corruption of its descriptive title, so to speak, El Kahirah, the victorious. The true name of the city is Misr. Bombay is only the Portuguese Bona Bahia, good bay, a modest enough name for an oriental city, since the names of such usually mean a great deal that is pretentious or splendid. Isaphan, for example, is the half of the world; Astrakhan, the city of the star; Bagdad, the garden of justice. Copenhagen is merely the merchants' harbor. The concealed "news" in foreign city names are legion, as Novgorod, Neustadt, Neufchatel, and even Naples.—New York Sun.

SUN COOKING.

The Chemical Action of the Orb's Rays Ruined the Food. Speaking of primitive methods of heating, it is undoubtedly a fact that man in early ages used bones to some extent as fuel, mixing them with pieces of wood. Bones contain much fatty matter and small ones burn readily.

In the desert regions of Arizona, where there is no vegetation worth mentioning, the Indians dig up for fuel the enormously developed roots of various plants. Pine cones make a fine kindling and are utilized for that purpose all over Europe, particularly in the Black Forest and other parts of Germany.

The attention of many scientific men has long been engaged in trying to devise some sort of apparatus for employing the sun's rays as fuel. One of the more noted experimenters in this line is Professor Edward Sylvester Morse. Mirrors are most commonly used to concentrate the rays of the solar orb for this purpose.

In one instance, not long ago, success was obtained in an attempt to cook a goose by the sun stove. Unfortunately, at the conclusion of the operation it was found that the bird was spoiled, being rendered unfit for food by the chemical action of the sun's rays. This, of course, might be avoided by shutting up the articles to be cooked in closed ovens. But the objection to the sun stove thus far found insuperable is its necessary elaborateness and consequent great cost.

Alcohol is an ideal fuel. It gives great heat and its combustion is perfect, without smoke or other solid residuum. In burning it resolves itself into water and carbonic gas. Of course it is too expensive for common use, but chemistry may yet discover a way of producing it at a small fraction of its present cost.—Boston Traveller.

His Objections.

One of the best men in Stafford county, Va., was running for supervisor there, and, as usual when a really good man runs for office, there was vigorous opposition to him. Some of it was expected, but when one ignorant but influential old fellow came out against the candidate the friends of both parties were surprised, and one of the candidate's supporters immediately went to see the old man.

"Is it actually true that you are against our man for supervisor?" asked the friend when he had led up to the point.

"In course I am," responded the old man firmly.

"But he is one of the best men in the whole county," argued the friend.

"I ain't doubtin' that at all, only I can't vote for him."

"Why not?"

"Cause I won't vote for no man under them circumstances."

"Under what circumstances?" inquired the friend in the greatest astonishment, for up to that time no "circumstances" had appeared in the campaign.

"Why, wantin' two offices at once, like he does," explained the kicker. "I'm willin' to vote for him for super, but I'll be derned if I'm goin' to vote for him for 'v'sor, and you can tell him so if you want to."

Thereupon the friend of the candidate organized an individual educational campaign, and by delicate diplomacy brought the old man up to the trough in good shape.—New York Sun.

Under a Bushel.

"I understand that a fellow has to know a lot to get into office under the District government," said the young man.

The first part of the week was very cool with light frosts in low places in the western portion on the 8th and 9th. The last half of the week was hot and dry up to Sunday, when good showers occurred in many sections, which were very beneficial to pastures and growing crops. The heaviest rainfalls occurred over the northern and southern counties, while those which passed over the central portion were generally light. The soil is still extremely dry and much rain will be required to revive the willing vegetation. Frost did no serious damage, except to slightly retard the growth of corn and potatoes in the deep valleys. Some damage from hail is reported in Jefferson county. Haying is about over except in the marshes. The crop has been gathered in excellent condition, and though the amount secured is generally light, its quality is unusually good. In some sections the hay crop turned out better than was expected, this is especially the case in the northwest portion, and along the Mississippi, where a fair yield is reported. Oats are ripening very rapidly and in the southern counties a few fields have been cut. The oat crop is, with very few exceptions, the heaviest in several years, and some correspondents say it was never better. In those localities where the drouth began early the yield of small grains will be light; but over a greater portion of the state they are fully up to an average season. The reports regarding pastures are discouraging, and where not entirely dead are fast becoming so; many farmers are feeding their stock, while a large number are selling off, with the expectation of reducing the number of cattle from 1 to 1 the usual number. The milk supply is falling off except in the northern and eastern portion where it is still fair. Blackberries and raspberries are drying on the bushes.

FOR EACH DOLLAR INVESTED CAN BE MADE BY OUR $10.00 Systematic Plan of Speculation originated by us. All successful speculators operate on a regular system. It is a well-known fact that there are thousands of men in all parts of the United States who, by a systematic trading through Chicago brokers, make large amounts every year, ranging from a few thousand dollars for the man who invests a hundred or two hundred dollars up to $50,000 to $100,000 or more by those who invest a few thousand. It is also a fact that those who make the largest profits from comparatively small investments on this plan are persons who live away from Chicago and invest through brokers who thoroughly understand systematic trading. Our plan does not risk the whole amount invested on any trade, but covers both sides, so that whether the market rises or falls it brings a steady profit that piles up enormously in a short time. WRITE FOR CONVINCING PROOFS, also our Manual on successful speculation and our Daily Market Report, full of money-making pointers. ALL FREE. Our Manual explains margin trading fully.
